

The Book of her Foundations

by Teresa of Avila

Introduction by Kieran Kavanaugh, ocd

St. Teresa wrote her extraordinary story The Book of Her Life under obligation to her confessors and spiritual directors hopeful that they would come to understand and enlighten her about the path along which the Lord was leading her...

Her narration grew into something more than plain history and became a witnessing to the realities of the interior life and their transforming power. The story of Teresa's life evolved into a story of God's mercy ... and she became obsessed with a desire to serve 'His Majesty' ...

In her Foundations she tells that she was tormented when the Franciscan missionary Alonzo Maldonado came to St. Joseph's. Recently returned from Mexico, he brought to the monastery grille his tale of the millions who had never heard of Jesus Christ. In Teresa's mind there could be no fate worse ... She thought that the greatest service one could render the Lord was to bring souls to Him ...

In 1567, the prior general of the Carmelites, Giovanni Baptista Rossi ... made his visitation of the Carmelite houses in Spain ... Teresa arranged to meet with him ... to explain ... her compelling desire ... The meeting turned out to be a happy one for both ... He wanted Teresa to found other similar monasteries and provided her with the official letters she would need ... This much consoled Teresa but she felt helpless: "Here I was, a poor discalced nun, without help from anywhere—only from the Lord ...

At the time of her death seventeen of her little Carmels for women had been founded:

Medina del Campo (1567);
Malagon and Valladolid (1568);
Toledo and Pastrana (1569)
Salamanca (1570);
Alba De Tormes (1571);
Segovia (1574);
Beas and Seville (1575);
Caravaca (1576);
Villanueva de la Jara and Palencia (1580);
Soria (1581);
Granada and Burgos (1582).

For men:

Durelo (1568) and

Pastrana (1569)

Origin & Composition

On August 25, 1573 in Salamanca ... Teresa began composing the story of her foundations. The idea for this new book seems to have derived from the Jesuit Jeronimo Ripalda, her friend and confessor ... who urged Teresa to enlarge upon her story and to write as well the history of the seven monasteries she had already founded...and about the first monasteries of her friars. He insisted that 'it would be of service to our Lord,' an irresistible argument for Teresa ... In February 1570, the Lord had appeared to her pressing her to make as many foundations as she could and also to write about them...

Teresa was reluctant to follow the Lord's urgings that she write about her foundations.... because of the lack of quiet time for writing. In addition, she had tangled business matters, endless correspondence, persistent bad health to deal with which also contributed to her lack of enthusiasm for the project. So in the end, only the thought of obedience to her confessor provided her with the strength needed to begin ... Once Teresa had completed chapter 19, her responsibility of obedience to Father Ripalda was fulfilled ...

Father Gracian entered the scene next and firmly insisted that Madre Teresa finish her story. Her objections ... only met with further encouragement and the advice to write in snatches and to do the best she could

In the closing lengthy chapter, which recounts the foundation of Burgos, with all of its troubles, Teresa's handwriting clearly demonstrates her state of exhaustion.

The Autograph (Original Work)

The original copy or autograph of The Foundations, once finished, was probably left at the monastery of Alba de Tormes. Later it was given to Luis de Leon, the noted Augustinian friar and scholar at Salamanca, who was assigned the task of preparing the first edition of Teresa's writings; The Foundations was omitted.

The given excuse was lack of time. But few doubt that there were other reasons as well ... namely Teresa had made references to people who were still alive...

After the death of Luis de Leon, in an effort to enrich his library, Philip II called for Teresa's autographs - The Life, the Way of Perfection, On the Making the Visitation, The Foundations. They are now all in the library of King Philip II, the Escorial.

In 1610, two of Teresa's close friends, Padre Gracian and Madre Ana de Jesus, in exile from Spain, took upon themselves the task of getting the book into print in Brussels ... Teresa hadn't given the book a name, so they called it The Book of her Foundations... Their publications had its deficiencies ...

An account of the foundation in Granada, written by Ana de Jesus, was included. This latter foundation was made by Madre Ana and Fray John of the Cross with Teresa's authorization at the time of the foundation in Burgos.

The publication was not well received in Spain. The book had been brought out without gaining the required permission from authorities within the order and because the editors depended on defective copies rather than on the original.

Even in the original work the industrious Gracian crossed out some words, but wisely in such a way that usually they can be easily read ... It was later that Fray Domingo Banez, Dominican, crossed out many of Gracian's comments and corrections and rewrote clearly Teresa's original words ...

Not until 1880, when Don Vicente de la Fuente published a photocopy of the original did readers have a faithful copy. Padre Silverio in his critical edition of the works of St. Teresa was the first to offer the public a reliable text.
